

What is a Medicare Annual Wellness Visit?

A Medicare annual wellness visit is a yearly health planning visit with your primary health care professional. It is available to anyone who has Medicare Part B. During the visit, you and your clinician will work together to create a plan that helps you stay healthy and avoid getting sick. Because this visit is to discuss your general health and wellness, it might not take place in an exam room.

How Much Does a Medicare Annual Wellness Visit Cost?

- Medicare annual wellness visits are fully covered under Medicare Part B. This means that if you have Medicare Part B, the visits are free if you go to a health care professional who takes Medicare. You will not have to pay coinsurance, copayments, or a deductible.
- If you get other tests not normally given at an annual wellness visit, you may be charged for them. These may also include treatments for a condition you already have.

Why Should My Annual Wellness Visit Be with My Regular Primary Health Care Professional?

You don't have to have an annual wellness visit, but if you do, it's a good idea to have it with your regular primary health care professional. This is the person you see regularly or who knows you best, such as a doctor, nurse, or other licensed clinician. He or she can get you the tests you need, make sure your medicines are right for you, and see any changes in your health that you or your health care professional should know about.
